

Jonathan Alboum

Jonathan Alboum is an Information Technology executive with in-depth knowledge and hands on experience leading and managing organizations.

As the CIO for the USDA Food and Nutrition Service (FNS), Jonathan works with stakeholders at all levels of the organization to provide leadership in formulating IT strategies, policies and initiatives. Prior to joining FNS, Jonathan worked as a management consultant for both PricewaterhouseCoopers and Ventera Corporation. During this time, he managed several large system implementations, gaining a depth and breath of knowledge on how various organizations use Information Technology to transform their businesses and serve their customers.

In addition to being a Project Management Professional, Jonathan possesses a MS in the Management of Information Technology from the University of Virginia's McIntire School of Commerce. He also earned a BS in Systems Engineering from the University of Virginia's School of Engineering and Applied Science.

Jonathan served as the Government Vice Chair for the 2010 Voyagers Program. He is also a member of the McIntire School of Commerce's Advisory Board for the Masters in the Management of Information Technology.

Jonathan was recognized by Federal Computer Week as a Federal Government Rising Star in 2008. He was also recently recognized by the Secretary of Agriculture for his support of the Small Business community and was a recipient of AFFIRM's 2010 Leadership Award for Service Excellence.
